SEP 1981

On the occasion of your retirement, after thirty-nine years of Government service, I want to express to you the thoughts of many of your friends and colleagues in the Agency.

You came to CIA during its formative years and brought with you a large experience gained in positions of responsibility and trust. Your record of service with CIA has been a splendid one. Your competence, loyalty and judgment have been abundantly testified to by your office. I would, however, particularly commend you at this time for the qualities of leadership and personal integrity which have made it possible for you to exercise broad influence in the development of younger men in the Security Career Service. The most lasting contribution any of us can make is having instructed and inspired others. You have the satisfaction of knowing that you have made this kind of contribution to CIA.

Along with your many friends here in the Agency, I extend best wishes for full enjoyment of the coming years.

Sincerely,
